Gaming News For You

Mr. Valenzuela

Senior Youth Leader

Call of Duty League:

This week's news is in the "Call of Duty League"; the beginning of the season, the league was having home openers for every team. With that being said, every team was hosting at a venue which will allow them to make some money for their organization as well as having teams from other cities in the country visiting to participate in the three day weekend event.

With the quarantine going on and everyone being on lockdown, the league has been put to a halt, no venues or LAN matches have been going on.

Now everything is moving back to online matches, the teams who have not had a chance to host their city will not be able to anymore and will have to return money to those who have purchased tickets to the events that were scheduled.

This is not the only issue at hand, for one team that I follow, The Chicago Huntsmen, they have one player living here in Los Angeles and everyone else lives in Texas where the main organization is located. The time difference is a big factor, with them having to practice from scims and making sure they are in the east or west coast servers, lagging issues and all.

The bar has been set and some teams prefer the online setting. Some are missing the in venue setting, but for this season we will have to finish the league like this until the lockdown is over.

Music Review

Mr. Ramirez

Athletic Instructor

I started a new hobby while being quarantined, I remember some of you telling me to listen to certain songs or albums. Now with the extra free time I can do so, but I think it'll be better if we do it all together and give it an overall rating whether that be new music dropping or your favorite song. I'm sure some of you really enjoy music and enjoy watching youtubers react to some of your favorite music as well. All genres are welcomed so if you feel like we are going to make fun of your music taste think again, we're open minded over here.
